

PROFESSIONAL LOG TRUCK DRIVER

The Professional Log Truck Driver program is a competency-based program designed by the BC Forest Safety Council in consultation with Log Truck and Truck Harvesting advisory group members. The goal is to improve the safety performance and professionalism of log truck drivers and to train Class 1 drivers to haul logs and drive on resource roads.

Students take part in 10 weeks of theory and classroom training, followed by six weeks of hands-on, practical log truck driver training. Students will be assessed by the BC Forest Safety Council prior to the 10-week work experience component.

Participants eligible to receive training must:

- Meet the definition of an "EI client"
- Be eligible for WorkBC Case Management and be referred by a WorkBC Case Manager
- Have a valid driver's licence
